

REVELSTOKE.

ENVIRONMENT AND SUSTAINABILITY.

Non-Profit Organizations

Many non-profits in Revelstoke are working to increase biodiversity, environmental protection, and support our community. Projects include invasive plant management, raising awareness about living safely near bears, improving bee populations, protecting forests, and community compost programs.

Green Transport

Revelstoke is a bike friendly city and small enough to walk around the downtown area. When going further, there are shuttles, public transit, and an impressive amount of electric vehicle chargers. Consider these options when writing your story and featuring green transport in your pitch.

Wildlife

When you arrive in Revelstoke, you'll be welcomed by humongous bear statues. They are a testament to our amazing wildlife. Bears, moose, endangered Mountain Caribou, bob cats, pine martins, marmots - there is a lot to see in Revelstoke. Although we love showcasing our wildlife, we must ensure that wildlife are protected. Any coverage of wildlife in the media must be accompanied by best practice information: Keep your distance, keep your site tidy, don't feed wildlife, respect closures, keep control of and look after your pets.
